ADU Australian design retail list

Introduction

About

The ADU retail list is a free resource for design businesses that are looking for Australian stockists for their goods. The extensive list provides short overviews and contact details for over 200 retailers including information on the kind of product stocked, and in many cases the contact details of the buyers or owners of the business.

Stores have been chosen that have a track record of stocking the work of Australian designers and craftspeople. This is a quite general criterion and consequently you will find there is a wide variation in the type of retailers on the list and their buying focus.

Some stores are small fashion boutiques who stock a selection of great accessories by Australian and international designers. Others are designer-run spaces that have a focus on stocking the work of local craftspeople and designers. There are also large showrooms, gallery spaces, boutiques and a whole range of other spaces that retail design products.

Advice

Please keep in mind that this list is intended as an introductory guide to Australian design retail. Before contacting any potential stockist you must do your own research. It is worthwhile looking into the type of products a store stocks, the brands they already have in store and their general approach or philosophy. This research will help you formulate a strong sales strategy and put you into a better position to get your product stocked in places that suit your brand.

Submissions

This list will be updated regularly but if you see information that is out of date or would like to suggest a retailer for the list please email info@australiandesignunit.com.

Nook is a small independently owned gift shop established by Michelle Gillies in the front section of her house in the Brisbane suburb of West End. Michelle is a craftsperson herself and prior to opening her own store had been crafting and wholesaling her own handmade goods to stores as well as selling online at Etsy.com.

The store was opened in mid-2009 to respond to a gap Michelle saw in the market for a Brisbane retail outlet that would value and support Australian and international crafters and indie designers.

Nook has an emphasis on independent design and recycled goods. The store stocks unique, and in some cases one off pieces, including greeting cards, stationary, jewellery, bags, t-shirts and homewares, sourced equally from Australian and international suppliers.

Michelle describes the aesthetic of the store as 'Handmade and homely! We have a vegie patch out the front and 90% of the shop fittings are second hand.' When sourcing products she says she 'Likes items that look handmade but are of a high standard. Recycled and upcycled goods are also at the top of my list. My desired price bracket falls somewhere between $15.00 and $80.00'

According to Michelle, Nook caters largely to an audience of 'mostly 20 to 40 year old women, creative, arty and crafty types, and people looking for eco or unique gifts.'

Brands stocked at Nook at the moment include Able and Game, Aunty Cookie, Paperboat Press, Little Jane St, Hot Toffee, Trove, That Vintage, Cat Rabbit, Ink & Spindle, Yellow Owl Workshop, Night Owl Paper Goods, Rebound Books, Nearly Roadkill, States of Nature, Pocket Carnival and Penguin.

3/10 Grebe St

Peregian Beach QLD 4573

T (07) 5471 3235

E sarah@sincdesign.com.au

www.sincdesign.com.au

Owner/buyer: Sarah Horell

Sinc Design is a boutique located on the Sunshine Coast that exclusively stocks Australian made and Fair Trade goods and is an 'outlet for items with integrity.'

The store was opened by Sarah Howell in November 2008 and started as a relaxed art gallery environment for new and up and coming artists to show their work. A small amount of Australian made and fair trade pieces were stocked from the beginning however following the global financial crisis Sarah decided to expand the retail section of the space.

Since then the boutique has been steadily building their sales and reputation, attracting a growing audience of consumers who are interested in purchases that make a difference - either by supporting a local artist, an Australian brand or communities in developing nations.

Sarah says that when it comes to choosing suppliers she only selects labels that trade ethically and produce items with integrity. 'International brands have no place here unless they can prove the commitment they have to fair trade practices and our environment.'

Products must also have a distinctive design element, 'No home made tea cozies here (unless they are hot!)' and compliment the stores core brands Dinosaur Designs (NSW), Mud Australia (NSW) and Perfect Potion (QLD). 'Other products fit in around products from those brands and create the feeling that if you keep looking you are bound to find a hidden gem.'

Due to the store's location at popular Sunshine Coast holiday destination Peregian Beach, a number of the store's clients are visitors from Brisbane or other tourists who Sarah says are conscious of price but willing to pay a bit more for something that is special and ethically produced.

Sinc Design has a diverse mix of product including art from local coast artists, homewares and jewellery and also features vintage pieces. They stock Australian design brands including Greg Drew sterling silver jewellery, Black Button, Tani Kleins Doodle Bugs ladies and baby wear, Cloth Fabric, Young Eve jewellery, Lost in the Woods, Aunty Art, Pinky Pig, sinc vintage, Ecostar bags, Dharma Door and Earthly Greetings gift cards and stationary.
